Hosted by Belgoproces

Genk – location

Genk – History

- Until 1900, Genk was a small town with only 2,500 inhabitants.
- The place was especially popular among landscape painters, of whom the best known was Emiel Van Doren.
- The house that he built at that time was donated to the city of Genk and converted into a museum.

Genk - History

- In 1902, Professor André Dumont discovered coal in Genk.
- Three coal mines were built in the territory of Genk. In 1914, the first coal was brought to the surface.
- In Winterslag and Waterschei (closed in 1989), buildings and shafts have been restored and can be visited.
- The site of Zwartberg (closed in 1966) has been completely transformed into an industrial park.
- Current population: 68,000.
